Boy Burned in Bonfire Near Upper Sandusky Dies at Hospital

BROUGHT HERE IN AMBULANCE

Marion Earl Hoerr Succumbs After Mother's Futile Attempt at Rescue

Upper Sandusky, April 30.—Marion Earl Hoerr, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor R. Hoerr, of Monroeville, died at 1 o'clock, yesterday, seven hours after he had been rushed to Marion City hospital, horribly burned when his clothing caught fire from a bonfire around which he had been playing. Over two-thirds of his body was seared by the flames, his face and right arm searing.

Mrs. Hoerr, the lady's mother, was severely burned on the hands while endeavoring to beat out the flames enveloping the boy.

The accident occurred about 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Marion, "Tommy," as he was familiarly called by his family, was playing at the rear of the home with James Albert, a neighbor boy, and his two brothers, Leonard, 5, and Ralph, 7. Hearing his screams, his mother rushed to the door to see him running toward the house, his clothes a mass of flames.

Snatching up a carpet she wrapped it around him but his clothes were practically burned from his body. Dr. L. N. Bowman was summoned and gave emergency treatment. The boy was then taken to Marion in the Brimman ambulance.

Marion Earl was born near Upper Sandusky, Nov. 20, 1924. Besides his parents and two brothers, he leaves one sister, Neva, aged one year and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hoerr, of Kirby.

Funeral services have been set for Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Maud Parish, in Monroeville. Rev. N. W. Sager will officiate and burial will be made in the old Mission cemetery. Pallbearers will be four cousins of the boy, Herbert Parish, Willis Bowers, Willis Thompson, and near Upper Sandusky, and Donald Humes, of Marion.

Kenton Landing Field to Be Opened Tuesday With Arrival of First Plane

Aerial Craft from Ford Airport to Come for Inaugural Event; Officials and Citizens to Have Part in Program

Kenton, April 30.—Kenton's new emergency airplane landing field, located two miles southwest of the city on the Roundhead rd., will be formally opened Tuesday afternoon when a plane from the Ford airport bearing representatives of the Ford company and a pilot, is expected to land here.

Passengers in the plane will be Stanley Knauss, manager of the Ford airport and Fred L. Black, advertising manager of the Ford Motor Car Co., and a native of this city. They are coming here to address the dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce marking the close of the luncheon at the hotel and membership campaign.

Guiding Sign
Huge white letters painted Saturday on the roof of the Kenton Hardware Co. plane shed will direct the fliers to the new field. The directions, composed by Ed Rose, Kenton, include the word Kenton and point with a large arrow pointing out the direction of the field from the city.

Land upon which the field is located was recently leased to the city by the Franco Stone Co., Toledo, as a part of its program in adding those communities in which it has quarters.

The dinner and meeting is to open in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 6:30 o'clock. In addition to the Ford executives, officials of the Franco company will attend as honorary guests.

The luncheon field was secured here through the efforts of the Chamber and the Kenton staff of the American Legion.

COURT HEARS CASE AT BUCYRUS TODAY
Crawford County Auditor Answers Charges Made by Publishers

Bucyrus, April 30.—For his answer to the petition in mandamus filed against him by the State of Ohio on relation of the Crawford County Printing and Publishing Co., publishers of The Telegraph-Journal, Charles E. Fox, auditor of Crawford county, filed an answer to the allegations of the petition and the case will be heard today in the common pleas court by Judge J. Walter Wright.

The original petition filed for the plaintiffs alleges that the annual report of the county auditor published recently in the New Washington Herald, was incomplete and asked that the auditor be ordered to publish the report correctly, and also that he cause the report to be published in a Republican newspaper as required by law.

The action was brought against Fox after refusal of Prosecuting Attorney Kreitzer to institute a suit in mandamus on demand of the publishers.

S. B. GROVE TO LEAVE KENTON

Resigns as Chamber of Commerce Secretary After Three-Year Service

Kenton, April 30.—After three years of successful and efficient work as secretary of the Kenton Chamber of Commerce, Stanley B. Grove has resigned, effective May 15, to accept the secretaryship of the Washington C. H. chamber at an increased salary.

Secretary Grove, the grandnephew of the Washington Court House, board succeeded Carlisle B. Miller, who resigned recently because of ill health.

While the local board of directors has favorably acted upon the resignation, no definite steps have been completed as yet in the securing of a successor to Mr. Grove.

Although Mr. Grove plans to leave May 15 to spend several days in Washington Court House, he will not formally sever his connections here until May 15. Mrs. Grove and two children will then take up their residence in that city.

Secretary Grove, a veteran of the World War having enlisted at the age of 18, came to Kenton Oct. 1, 1908, from Columbus, succeeding Delmar C. Starker, now publicity director of the Columbus chamber.

10 Teams Sign Up For City Recreation League Season

30 Expected To Enter By Late Tonight

No Date Set for Meeting of Commission; Season Opens Monday

No definite date for a meeting of the Marion Recreation League Commission to consider schedules and entries in the league has been set by Secretary F. O. Rudolph. A meeting will be held this week.

Opening of the season will be made next Monday night when it is expected that 30 teams will go into action. It has not been decided what teams will play the initial games.

To date 10 teams have entered the league with the final date set for tonight. It is expected that the balance of the clubs will send in entry blanks.

Teams entered to date are: Hocking Valley, C. D. A. M., Kewanee, Joe Street Presbyterians, Eagles, Steam No. 1, United Brothers and St. Mary's. Last year 28 teams took part in the league play with the Catholic Evangelical center in the church league winning the city title.

Church teams after a conference yesterday are expected to sign up tonight. Other teams will enter this afternoon, it was announced.

Interest in the league is taking on an added impetus as the opening day nears. Change in weather forecasts for this week leads to the hope that the elements will favor the opening week.

Practically every team organized to date has been devoting considerable time to practice and will send veteran aggregations into the battle.

EAGLES HOLD FIRST REAL BASEBALL PRACTICE HERE

With 20 players turning out, the Marion Eagles received their first real workout of the season. Several batter combinations were tried out and Manager Brown is casting his eye over some of the heavy hitters on the team.

The season is slated to open here Sunday against a Springfield team.

The earliest M. D. recorded was William Graham, Doctor of Medicine and of Arts in the Italian College of Arts, 1529.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach trouble.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, pale appetite, a lacy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like, 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

Tex Rickard Overplays Hand in Bringing Sharkey and Delaney Together

BY DAVID J. WALSH

New York, April 30.—Jack Sharkey, the ex-champion of Boston, and Jack Delaney will meet in another of those 15-round heavyweight fights at the Garden tonight and the chances seem good that Tex Rickard will sit tense and preoccupied throughout, with at least two fingers crossed on the hand that writes the checks.

The betting odds say Sharkey should win decisively and not a few of the sharpshooters are picking him to win by a knockout. If he does, the build-up for the Tunney-Heeney heavyweight championship fight in July will need the architect who designed the Woodworth Tower.

The fast of the matter is that Heeney has been named as the challenger without so much as securing a knockdown against Sharkey, Johnny Risko or Delaney.

Two Many Challengers

In Risko, Rickard already has one more challenger than he can conveniently use, unless he decides to take the July fight out of the handbook class by sending two fighters in with Tunney at one and the same time. Sharkey will make the third who ought to be in there, provided he can clip Delaney on the buzzer.

At that, it is understood that Sharkey has been promised a match with George Godfrey if he wins, and the bait held out for a Delaney victory is another shot at Risko.

Anyhow, they are dying very hard on Sharkey. A lot of them thought he beat Dempsey and came back with a rush to see him loaf through the Heeney fight. Even his indifferent effort against Risko didn't kill them off.

Babe Ruth Starts Off on Home Run

Washington, April 30.—Despite his miserable showing in pre-season games, Babe Ruth is off on another home run spree. His homer off Horace Lisenby of the Senators yesterday gave him four for the season and a tie with Joe Mauer of the Athletics for the leadership of both leagues. Lou Gehrig, a close second to Ruth last year, has hit only two this season.

Three of the Babe's homers this year have been made at the expense of Lisenby, who was a jinx to the Yankees last season.

Ruth is two games ahead of his last year's record.

ENGINEERS STUDY BETTER, SAFER DAMS

Stimulated by Recent St. Francis Dam Tragedy in California

Washington, April 30.—Stimulated in their investigation of safer reservoir construction by the recent St. Francis Dam tragedy in California, engineers of America, under the leadership of the Engineering Foundation, are with renewed vigor attacking the problem of safety and economy in the construction of such dams.

The U. S. Government is taking a hand in the research, a series of small model dams being under construction and study at the University of Colorado, through the direction of the Bureau of Reclamation.

Efforts of these engineers already are yielding valuable knowledge, said a statement by the Engineering Foundation. "The investigation will be continued with the aim of providing answers to fundamental questions making less remote the probability of disasters such as the breaking of the St. Francis Dam."

Director Alfred D. Elmon, of the Engineering Foundation, will issue soon a report covering the progress of operations on the experimental arch dam constructed by the Foundation's arch dam committee, with the cooperation of engineering societies, United States governmental bureaus, power companies, banks and other organizations, on Stevenson Creek in a canyon of the Sierra near Fresno, California. The American Society of Civil Engineers is preparing the report.

The Stevenson Creek dam, sixty feet high and 140 feet long, cost $100,000. Erected for the purpose of being destroyed in the interest of science, it probably will be extended to a height of 100 feet, so that it may undergo tests of greater rigor until it finally bursts. So far the dam has resisted the waters that have been loosed, according to the Engineering Foundation.

"The dam is shaped like a symmetrical, triangular piece of the side of a round can and stand on its point, curved upstream," the preliminary report showed. "It is of concrete reinforced with steel reinforcement, and with thousands of parts of instrument, embedded for making tests."

"Thousands of measurements of strain, deflection and temperature have been made with the water at various depths up to sixty feet, as well as with no water in the reservoir. Despite the artificial floods sent against it, the dam still stands."

Engineers and scientists in charge of the experiment declare that the dam should be built higher and tested until it bursts in order that nothing may be left undone in minimizing further human and economic loss through lack of facts upon which more accurate theories and computations may be based.

The tests are being directed by Dr. W. A. Shuter, chief of the division of concrete and masonry of the Bureau of Standards.

'Psychological Marriage' Is Ohio Professor's New Idea

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, April 30.—A new type of marriage which is believed to be an outgrowth of the companionate plan of Judge Ben Lindsey, has been offered to society by Dr. William A. Shiner, of the department of sociology at Ohio State University.

The plan presented by the Ohio State professor provides for a "psychological marriage" with a department to advise the matrimonially inclined individual as to the type of life companion he would be capable of living with, according to his own character and personality. Besides bettering society in general, the psychological plan would eliminate hardships on the part of the married couples by picking mates with whom they can best travel the path of matrimony, Dr. Shiner believes.

No "Survival Value"

"A companionate marriage alone would only eliminate children and would not have the survival value," the sociologist maintains. "In a short time, with the use of this plan, only the persons interested in children would survive."

"Marriage on impulse is a great mistake," Dr. Shiner declares in support of his idea. "The correction of this

In the opinion of the professor, society is the most realistic of the participants in a marriage. They are not only tested with the burden of motherhood, he says, but are also the umpires of the character and personality of their children.

David Seas, 90-Year-Old Civil War Veteran, Recalls Incidents of Long Service With Guard at Washington

His Story: — This is the story of a series of incidents which are the experiences of a Civil War veteran, representative of what in some ways is the "Fading of Blue."

The figure of a man and a woman, representing the Civil War, are shown in a small illustration. The man is in uniform, and the woman is in a long dress. They are standing in front of a building that looks like a fort or a government building.

It is a pleasure to hear him chuckle over an early incident in which he figured at the fort. Being a remarkable gunner, he was one day preparing to try out his skill with a target located some distance from the fort. He had sighted his gun and was aiming at the target, when he was just ready to let go when a drill-master from New York stepped up, and snatched the gun a little to the left and fired.

Other Minor Mark
Of course he missed his mark by a wide margin. Being a superior officer, his failure to make a creditable showing at marksmanship was not subject to comment from Seas, who had to be content with knowing that his shot would have hit the mark had the officer not interfered.

Hardly had the ball left the cannon when word was received that Early's army of 40,000 men was only seven miles away. Excitement bordering on desperation seized the camp. There was no cannon attack was necessary.

It needn't be!

There were only 2,000 men guarding the 15-mile front around the city. Residents were frantic as the troops prepared for action. A convention was assembled for the artillery and everything was ready for a big skirmish.

Branches of Service
Most people, in considering the service of soldiers, think only of men on a battlefield. This conception is to a large degree incorrect, Mr. Seas says, pointing out that the army needs men to guard fortifications, bridges, streams and other possible points of attack, just as much as they are needed in field combat.

The aged veteran pictured the thrills experienced by a force on guard with the enemy approaching close to the fortress walls.

A ditch, six to eight feet in width, was dug around the fort and then there were walls rising for a considerable distance. Often stakes were driven into the earth at intervals around the outside of the ditch with wire strung from one stake to another about a foot from the ground.

When the invaders made their rush for the fort they often struck the wire and plunged into the ditch. During this confusion the protectors of the fortification hurled hand grenades into the mass of fallen men and in many cases put up such an effective defense in this way that no cannon attack was necessary.

Sea Shaved Opponent
Mr. Seas never had the opportunity of seeing Lincoln or Grant while he was in the service, although once he met them.

A Message to Underweight Men and Women

The one supremely good health building tonic that is also the one great weight producer known to modern science the country over is McCoy's Tablets.

Take them for a few weeks and the hollows in your cheeks, your neck and chest should fill out and whether you be man or woman you may have an attractive figure and plenty of "get there" energy in just a short time.

Many times the increase in weight is astonishing—one exceedingly thin woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days.

McCoy takes all the risk—head this iron-clad guarantee. If after taking 60 tablets you do not gain at least 5 pounds or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at any drug store in America.—Adv.

took part in competition for a gun to Washington and the White House. Officers of his company announced that the man with his mustache and uniform in the best condition would get the coveted prize. Seas had always kept his mustache and his uniform neat and knew that he stood a good chance of getting the prize to the Capital.

He reckoned, though, without measuring the shrewdness of another man who had two muskets, one for work and one for parade use, and a white paper collar worn only on state occasions. Of course on parade day when the winner of the prize was to be announced, this young soldier stratted forth in an immaculate white collar and a bright, gleaming mustache and won the sightseeing tour to Washington.

After the battle of Gettysburg, in which an older brother was killed, Seas joined the militia in July, 1863. On May 2, 1864, at the age of 20, he was sworn in for service as a member of Company B, 136th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, was sent to Virginia and later to the guard at Washington.

Mr. Seas was never 80 for military service because of tenderness and susceptibility of the tissues of his throat following an acute stage of diphtheria.

Born in Stark County
Born in Stark County in 1838, married in 1857 to Miss Mary Doherty and being the father of seven children, five of whom are living. Mr. Seas has a clear conception of life and its duties and obligations. He and Miss Doherty were married in the building which formerly occupied the site where Epworth M. E. parsonage now stands.

All of his life he has spent as a resident of Ohio, the last 20 years in Marion. For 15 winters he taught schools in log cabins.

Carol Seas, a son, taught the old home place near Claridon and is living there now. It was in this house that one of the children of Mr. and Mrs. David Seas were born.

Mr. Seas has a fine collection of curios and antiques which he is always glad and willing to show to persons who are interested. In the collection is an old-time lantern, an instrument used many years ago for blood letting, a common treatment then for nearly all human ailments.

A jawbone, believed to be that of an Indian or some other aborigine of a far-distant era of the past, found on the Richland, near Zim, church. Confederate money, and a rare old porcelain pipe from Germany are some of the other curios in the collection.

COINS BOTHER OFFICIALS

Bent coins in chocolate slot machines are now added to the worries of the officials of the government railways in Australia. School children of Northcote recently protested that they were being cheated out of their pennies, which they put into the machines, and for which they received no chocolate. The railway commission investigated and found that bent coins, pieces of tin and bits of cardboard inserted in the machine caused them to keep up and not deliver the sweets. The commission apologized to the pupils.

Ritzy Rosey

If Providence chooses to make a beautiful remark Ritzy Rosey can be considered a "mark on wood." For she is wearing one of the new hats fashioned of brightly dyed feathers. Penelope is a bit more conservative. She heard that crocheted cloths were becoming increasingly difficult to obtain and correspondingly high in price. No, womanlike, she happened to purchase a crocheted vest hat.

FAVORABLE DECISION ON MERGER IS DUE

Unification Plan Will Include C. & O. Control in Erie, Pere Marquette

Washington, April 30.—A favorable decision on the billion dollar Van Sweringen railroad unification plan, and which the Chesapeake & Ohio, Van Sweringen controlled, will acquire stock control of the Erie and Pere Marquette, is expected to be handed down by the Interstate Commerce Commission within a few days.

Convinced that Congress will not pass the Parker railroad consolidation bill at this session, a majority of the commission is said to have reached the conclusion that further delay in reaching a conclusion on several merger proposals would be harmful to the railroad interests of the country, and that constructive action should be taken at once.

The Van Sweringen plan has been before the commission for many months, and now met with defeat when it was proposed to make the Nickel Plate the nucleus of the proposed system. The new plan omits the Nickel Plate and substitutes the Chesapeake & Ohio as the main stem in the system.

Would You Want Back The Old Days?

Often you hear the cry—"Give me back the good old days." But would you want to go back to the "old days" when the horse and buggy were the mode of transportation—when in the winter you hugged a coal stove, scorched your face and froze your back—oil lamps were the only light.

Then came Gas and the old days went by the board. Homes were made comfortable—industries were able to flourish—towns grew and people were made more prosperous and happy.

Now, has come another day. Your Gas Company is no longer able to deliver gas to Marion as cheaply as before. Gas must be brought a greater distance—costs have mounted and today we are all faced with the fact that GAS IS WORTH MORE.

steel drum, explosion of which caused the death of four Akron boys and the serious injury of another Sunday. The blast occurred at about 10:30 a. m. at a Magalloway Co. warehouse, according to police, who expressed belief that one of the boys struck a match on the drum and ignited escaping gas. The dead: Charles Carter, 14; Frederick Wood, Jr., 12; Albert Carter, 10, brother of Charles; Leman Carter, 5, brother of Charles and Albert. Leslie Hunk, 14, although severely burned, was expected to recover. First to reach the boys following the explosion, N. R. McCarter, Akron, attempted to extinguish the flames. Later he was joined by others, including Fred Woodly, father of one of the victims. Woodly was killed by an unbalanced, unaware of his son's location until his young daughter told him she thought Frederick was among the group. The boy, burned beyond recognition, then was identified by means of a mouth organ found in his pocket. Goodyear officials claim "outdoors" left the drum near the shed.

TWO MILLION ROAR WELCOME TO FLIERS

Scores of Craft Set Up Terrific Din in New York Harbor

pier the vessels, crowded with people, released sirens and whistles and the din became terrific. Within 30 feet of the Macon lay the Hamburg-American liner "Deutschland," loaded with Germans. Hats were thrown in the air, people danced on the deck and the wildest excitement ensued.

A band aboard the Deutschland struck up the German national anthem. Captain Koehl and Baron Von Huenefeld stood at attention. This was followed by lively Irish tunes played by the fire department band which was on board the Macon.

Crowds waved handkerchiefs and cheered from the giant Irish Lascabans, which was at anchor a few hundred yards up the harbor.

As the Macon steamed down the harbor there was an incessant clanging of horns and shrieking of sirens.

It began to drizzle slightly but this failed to dampen the ardor of the celebration.

Scores of Craft

Two coast guard cutters, one on each side, escorted the Macon. The three flares stood in the pilot house and surveyed the scene in amazement. Captain Koehl's chubby face wore a broad grin.

Flamboyant wide Irish face radiated happiness as he waved in answer to the cheering.

"Wonderful! Wonderful!" exclaimed the beaming, fingered air navigator. Scores of river craft, including two steam yachts, excursion boats and police launches, took part in the nautical parade. The Macon slowly made its way to the Statue of Liberty, circled it and then returned northward and up at the Battery at exactly noon.

At the Battery's column of 10,000 soldiers and sailors were stationed. They immediately began a march northward to the City Hall, followed by the flares and the automobiles of the reception committee and the press.

Packed on both sides of lower Broadway were tremendous crowds of people, held back by lines of police. Policemen were stationed five feet apart for blocks.

Triumphal March

It was a triumphal march up Broadway. The bands played splendidly, horns and the cheering was terrific.

Irish began to fall more heavily. Newsboys were quickly used as improvised umbrellas.

Confetti and strips of paper were showered down on the firemen from windows of the skyscrapers along Broadway. Von Huenefeld, Koehl and Fitzmaurice had to stand up and wave time and again in response to the cheering.

At City Hall a welcome was warm and perhaps meaning a great deal more than the two of the flares. There Mrs. Elfrida Koehl, wife of Captain Koehl and Mrs. Anna Koehl, and his seven-year-old daughter, Patricia, were waiting in the spacious stand.

A grandstand seating some 2,000 persons had been erected at City Hall for the occasion. Every seat was taken and the rain did not seem to drive anybody away.

Wants Her Daddy

"Where's Daddy—when's Daddy coming?" Patricia continually asked her mother.

The mother did not answer. There were too many in her mind.

"I only want to see my daddy," said Mrs. Koehl, a smart-looking, tobacco-haired woman. She was greatly excited.

Color was added to the speakers' stand by the entrance of the diplomat's corps including representatives from Germany and the Irish Free State. Also present were prominent New York City politicians, Robert E. La Follette, descendant of the famous southern general, as well as the district attorney.

Presently the three celebrities came into sight at the City Hall at 12:45—and the cheering became deafening. With the aid of the Irish, not to forget the Germans, the rain began to let up at exactly this minute.

Mrs. Koehl and Mrs. Fitzmaurice became greatly excited as their husbands came into sight with the mob cheering wildly. Neither woman could speak. Mrs. Fitzmaurice wiped her eyes with her handkerchief.

The band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner."

As the flares came directly in front of the speakers' stand, Koehl and Fitzmaurice recognized their wives. Their faces lit up. They leaped out and, running the gauntlet of hand-shaking by men and women who blocked their path, they rushed to their wives.

Wife, Daughter

Fitzmaurice and his wife embraced. Mrs. Fitzmaurice, a tear sliding down her cheek gave a hug and a kiss.

Patricia was right behind her. She kissed daddy several times and daddy hugged her up and down, just as he perhaps had often done before.

Mr. and Mrs. Koehl had a very affectionate meeting too.

The baron, a bachelor, surveyed the scene happily. Everybody knew him because of his monic and he seemed immensely popular.

Mrs. Koehl, who is 25, is the same square, wholesome type as her husband. Her face and hands are deeply tanned, for she is a typical German woman of the outdoors. Mrs. Fitzmaurice is tall, slender and rather fragile looking.

Many are cold and snobby chiefly because they don't care, not that they have any animosity toward their vic-

The sole purpose of the campaign, she said, was the prevention of accidents due to faulty brakes.

THREE DRIFTING

Vessels Trail Along With Helpless American Steamer

Norfolk, Va., April 29—The government steamer, the ship, the helplessness American steamer, Western Ocean, 350 miles east of the Virginia Capes.

The Western Ocean has been drifting since April 18 and has been twice in line of government boats and twice within 200 miles of the Virginia Capes, only to be caught in a storm, have the low line parted and be cast adrift again.

She broke away from two vessels yesterday, the coast guard cutter, Macoma, and the navy tug, Kewadaga. She broke away from the cutter, Caribbea, last Monday.

BRAKE TESTS HERE

OVER 1,000 IN WEEK

Number Taking Advantage of Auto Service Described as Disappointing

Approximately 300 motorists took advantage Saturday of the free brake testing station, established by the Marion Auto Club on Mt. Vernon last week, as a part of the statewide testing campaign conducted by the State Automobile Association.

A total of more than 1,000 motorists had their brakes tested during the week. It was stated today by Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the club, who expressed disappointment that more did not take advantage of the opportunity to have their braking equipment free of charge.

No attempt at commercializing was permitted by the club in carrying on the campaign. Mrs. Gallagher said, no recommendations or advice to owners of cars with defective brakes being made as to where to take their car for repairs. The sole purpose of the campaign, she said, was the prevention of accidents due to faulty brakes.

U. S. BATTLE FLEET ELUDES "ENEMY" SHIPS

Honolulu, T. H., April 29—Successful in the first stage of its annual spring maneuvers, the United States battle fleet, composed of 15 vessels and more than 70 airplanes, was in Honolulu today, following the completion of its tactical drill from San Francisco.

In traversing the Pacific from the Mainland, the great armada successfully eluded a group of "enemy" ships which had been assigned to "attack" and intercept the fleet. It was announced by Admiral Louis H. Denig, commander-in-chief.

A Change for the Better.

From Berlin came word last week that General Groener, the Reichswehr minister, had been challenged by Count Reventlow, a leading member of the German Fascist, to fight a duel and had refused to meet the count on the "field of honor." The count's challenge and the response of the general are now over a month old, but news of the incident did not break until last week, when it was given publication by a Berlin paper.

It seems that the general, disgusted by a speech being delivered in the Reichstag by the count, got up and left the cabinet bench, which was taken by the count as an insult, which it very probably was meant to be. The count sent an insulting message to the general in which he stated that, as a former Prussian officer, he would not stand for an affront of such a nature and that his seconds would call upon the general to demand satisfaction on the field of honor.

The general's response wasn't exactly what might be called diplomatic. In fact, it was decidedly blunt. He stated that he did not consider himself compelled to discuss military matters with a man who, during the entire war, had never been seen at the front, but was always safely at home, and closed his answer by saying: "Your valor and fighting enthusiasm came nine years too late, while your challenge, which evidently was intended as an April fool joke, reaches me two days too early."

While the count may and probably was anxious to meet the general with swords or pistols, it is evident that he was not prepared for the general's sarcasm and ridicule. In any event he made no reply, and the incident thus stands closed without bloodshed.

It would be difficult to imagine such an outcome to a challenge to fight a duel in Germany back before the World War. It would be so utterly out of line with the Germany portrayed as late as two decades ago on the stage, in fiction or in the press, the Germany in which her student life considered the scars from sword thrusts their faces bore things for pride. It is manifest that there has been more of a change in Germany than that from an empire to a republic. There has been a change—a change for the better—in the minds and hearts of her people. A change has been worked in their ideals. The swash-buckling days of the old regime are no more. The very fact that the popularity of General Reventlow has been advanced by his refusal to meet Count Reventlow shows it.

But had the two met, and the general proved as unyielding as the sword and as unfeeling as the sword, whichever he used in answering the count, what a sorry mess he would have made of the latter!

Drive for Chinese Famine Relief.

The recent launching of a $10,000,000 drive to aid famine sufferers in the war zones of China has developed the fact there is a decidedly wide gap between the views of the Red Cross and those of the China Famine Relief association regarding the matter of Chinese relief.

The relief project is sponsored by high officials of the board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, the board of commissioners for foreign missions of the Congregational church, the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church, the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the national council of the Young Men's Christian association, the China society and the Christian Herald, and it has at the head of its executive committee as chairman Major General James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America.

The new organization plans an intensive drive of eight weeks throughout the United States under the direction of John Earle Baker, the civil engineer who was the executive director of the great famine relief expedition conducted by the American Red Cross in China in 1920-21.

The view of the new organization is that the Chinese famine sufferers should be given relief regardless of responsibility for the famine; that where suffering exists, the sufferers should be succored.

The belief of the Red Cross is said to be that the people of this country should not be asked to send contributions of money to China so long as that country remains the prey of the bandit-militarists, who are so largely responsible for the famine which exists there, to say nothing of the impoverishment of China; that to do so will simply give the bandit-militarists more to seize and prolong the fearful conditions which obtain as a result of their activities.

From Washington comes report that, in this view, John Barton Payne, who is president of the Red Cross, and Colonel E. P. Hicknell, director of its foreign operations, are acting in complete accord with the views of the federal government as the result of the government's official information concerning the actual state of affairs in China.

It is just possible, although we are frank to say that nothing to justify the assumption has been given out, that the government may be influenced in some degree by the thought that some of the organizations behind the drive resented the presence of United States war vessels in Chinese waters and the activities of United States troops in protecting Americans in China and, if we remember correctly, urged their withdrawal.

Be that as it may, we have endeavored to place the matter before the readers of this newspaper that they may know, if they are not already informed, the purpose of the drive and those at the head of it, and why the Red Cross is not and will not be active in providing relief, for as the drive is to be nationwide in its character, they naturally will be solicited in one way or another for contributions.

THE SPRING DRIVE IN CHINA.

Fluttering Pulse Common Symptom

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There are two forms of ailments: The first is "organic disease." That is, there is actual change in the tissues, something that can be seen or felt.

The second form we know as "functional disease," or as a functional derangement. There is no change in the tissues, but the function of the organ or part is disturbed. It does not operate as it should.

As applied to the heart, for instance, this is a disturbance in action that is not founded on actual disease. At least all the parts of the heart are normal in structure and appearance.

There are a number of these so-called functional disturbances of the heart. The chief ones are "palpitation," and "intermittent" or "irregular" heart-beat.

In palpitation there is a feeling of "fluttering" in the chest. The patient is conscious of his heart's action, as, of course, he is not in health.

Many a person on occasions, if he has the bad habit of feeling his own pulse, will find it irregular. That is, there will be three or four rapid beats and then two or three slow ones.

In other instances, every once in a while the heart seems to miss a beat, as if the heart has stopped for a moment.

Neurosthenics may have these symptoms. Debilitated persons also present them. Overworked and worried persons suffer this way sometimes.

Excessive smoking, tea or coffee drinking, or intestinal poisoning, are usually responsible for such annoying symptoms. Cut down on tobacco and the beverages and the trouble will usually vanish.

Constipation or gastric disturbances must be overcome. If the patient is overworking, mentally or physically, a short respite will restore the heart to its normal action.

Overeating, crowding the stomach with food, may be responsible for one of these functional disturbances. Since most persons are amazingly voracious in their eating habits, the wonder is that such derangements are not vastly more common.

Taking an enema and going without food for a day will do much to restore normal conditions. There is nothing to be worried over—the symptom is merely a warning to correct the manner of living. In this sense, it is important, but so far as life is concerned the symptom is of no consequence.

A visit to your doctor and a survey of your general condition are the right steps in such a case.

THE UNKNOWN OCEAN.

Perhaps the most significant things that Captain Wilkins saw on his flight across America's half of the circumpolar sea were the two or three spots of smooth ice on which landings might have been made, if necessary. Even though the flight did not disclose the hoped-for spot or two of solid land large enough for a permanent weather station, it is probable, pending Captain Wilkins' complete scientific report, that a significant amount of polar exploration by aeroplane is now proved possible, to and from selected landing spots on the ice itself. Merely to have traversed the Arctic wastes once more by air might have been deemed an innocent excuse, even by Captain Wilkins himself, for the risk and cost of the trip. It is bits of vital information like the discovery of ice fields suitable for landings which made the crossing more than a mere epic of adventure.

Of the world's continents and the world's oceans one each remains unknown—The Antarctic continent and the Arctic ocean. In Arctic exploration the two needs seem now paramount. First—and perhaps the more important—is need of better knowledge of Arctic weather. Some day great air liners will cross the polar icefields between London and Tokyo or between Alaska and New York. Before this can be done air currents and cloud banks must be charted far more accurately than now. The Arctic service, too, as the great meteorological steamship in which are brewed the storms of North America and of western Europe. An Professor Hobbs desires to do with his plan of a permanent weather station in Greenland, it is desirable even for the weather services of temperate climates that we learn more of circumpolar winds and air pressures and cold.

The second need of Arctic research is better knowledge of the polar sea. How deep is that unknown ocean? what are its secret currents? how does its vast, deep reservoir affect the movements of the tides in the more populous oceans around its borders? For these needed studies of the ocean, as for the improvement of Arctic weather records, it is essential that men be able to come and go across the polar ice almost as easily as they do, for example, through the length and breadth of Africa or South America. Surface travel in the Arctic has long been recognized as insufficient for these purposes. It is both too hazardous and too slow. Aircraft seem more promising. Dirigibles are able to hover over selected areas, and will have, doubtless, their role to play. Swift aeroplanes like that of Captain Wilkins, able to go and come quickly between possible landings on the ice and well equipped with bases on surrounding lands, are likely to prove even more useful instruments of exploration.—New York Herald Tribune.

IMPULSIVE ISLAM.

An American missionary with more courage than judgment almost started a riot when he recently invaded a great Moslem university in Cairo and distributed tracts which were not only Christian, but which specifically attacked the Mohammedan religion. The students became much excited, and a fanatic local sheik took up the leaflet offered him and threw it in the air and well enough to cause a riot.

The zealous visitor, however, escaped alive and unharmed and that is something for which he can thank his lucky stars. It must be that the Moslems of the Near East and North Africa have recently grown very much more mild than in the old days and than their co-religionists further in the hinterland. The missionary in question may have counted on this present mellow state, but the fact remains that he took an awful chance. In many places and on many occasions there would not have been enough left of him to cause the mosque janitor more than a slight inconvenience in mopping up. A lightning stroke would have seemed a dainty sort of proceeding compared to what he would have gotten.

There may have been a time when extreme personal bravery and even effrontery got a missionary somewhere. Those days seem to have passed and the millions who follow other faiths appear to appreciate tact and diplomacy on the part of their would-be converters. Through medicine, through athletics, through social service and in many other ways men are sometimes won over to the "Path of Salvation," seldom does this happen through direct and disagreeable frontal attacks on the faith of their fathers.—Washington Star.

Poems That Live.

A SONNET TO SLEEP.

A flock of sheep that leisurely pass by
One after one: the sound of rain, and bees
Murmuring: the fall of rivers, winds and seas,
Smooth fields, white sheets of water, and pure
sky!I've thought of all by turns, and yet do lie
Sheep-like, and soon the small birds' melodies
Must hush, first uttered from my orchard trees,
And the first cuckoo's melancholy cry.

Even thus last night, and two nights more I lay.

And could not win thee, Sleep, by any stealth:
So do not let me wear tonight away!
Without thee what is all the morning's wealth?
Come, blessed barrier between day and day,
Dear mother of fresh thoughts and joyful health.

—William Wordsworth.

Saturn.

BY GARRETT P. SERVINO.

About 11 p. m. now the planet, Saturn, may be seen rising close to the eastern horizon, above the up-lifted sting of the Scorpion. Saturn will be the planetary phenomenon of the early summer months, his huge rival, Jupiter, being over on the other side of the sky in the neighborhood of the sun. During May Saturn will rise earlier each evening, and by the opening week of June he will be in opposition to the sun, thus rising about sunset and reaching the meridian at midnight.

All observers are agreed in regarding Saturn with its rings as the most beautiful telescopic object in the solar system and perhaps in the universe. It is the wonderful rings, hanging in strange silvery splendor, one within another, directly over its equator, that give Saturn its preeminence. Nothing else quite like them has ever been found in the heavens.

These rings are not always equally visible from the earth, and at certain times they disappear completely except from very powerful telescopes. This happens because, notwithstanding their enormous breadth—about 167,000 miles—they are very thin, perhaps not over ten miles thick on the average, and being hundreds of millions of miles away, their edges, although illuminated by the sun, become invisible to us. This happens once about every fifteen years, or twice during a single revolution of Saturn around the sun, which takes nearly thirty years. The last disappearance of the rings was in 1922, since which date they have been gradually opening out until now they are at nearly their widest extension with reference to the poles of the planet, which hangs suspended like a ball at their center.

The cause of the variation in the appearance of the rings is that their plane is inclined to the line of sight from the earth, so that twice in a revolution they are presented exactly edge-wise toward the earth.

These rings look even in a powerful telescope, like smooth flat surfaces, but it has been proved that they really consist of immense swarms of small bodies, circling around the planet, all nearly in one plane and so close together that the individual particles can not be distinguished. How they originated is only a matter of conjecture. It has sometimes been suspected that they undergo changes which indicate that they some time descend upon the planet, but there is no certainty about this.

There are two main rings, which can be seen in a drawing of the planet, besides a third faint ring, the "crepuscular," inside the brightest one, which is not conspicuous except where it is seen like a shadow crossing the planet. This ring seems to be composed of more widely scattered particles than the others—as if it were a shower of descending particles from the brighter ring. The outer ring is less bright than the central one. The ball of the planet, which is about 70,000 miles in diameter, is more or less banded with shadowy belts, and is darker around the poles than near the equator. Saturn's density is low, so that, although as a whole it weighs ninety times as much as the earth, it would easily float in water. Saturn has no less than nine moons. New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, April 30.—Ditty of a modern poet, up to read the mail and as among the Rig Bellows and Fraser Hunt came a bear to which I listened earnestly a half hour before discovering it was fiction.

So to walk in Central park with my dog, stopping to watch the elderly croquet players holding aloft their sun parasols, and also the children riding in goat carts along the mall. And the Shakespeare garden abloom with lovely flowers, as pretty a spot as in all the city.

In the evening with Courtney Ryler Cooper and our wives to the circus dress rehearsal, and we fed fish to Goliath, the sea elephant, and rode on Lillian Leitner, of the flying rings, in her dressing-room, and found her gay as ever. So home and to bed.

The theory of a rotting speck destroying the barrel of apples is often illustrated in the change that comes to a New York block. One year it will present an aura of dignity, and the next a jangle of trade. Not so long ago a glorified delicatessen found a corner location in a block in the "Fashionable Fifties." The effect was that of a spawning fish in migration. In a few months the entire block was dotted with cheap-john stores. Associations were formed to protect streets from trade invasion, but if there is a weak link in the chain efforts seem futile. So great a residential thoroughfare as Fifth avenue was unable to resist it.

The Chinese, having successfully made a dent in the Broadway restaurant field, now threaten to cut capers in another industry. That is the field of children's bodies. Most of them have come from European centers where the "pedicure Chinitos" is firmly established. New York now has almost a score of Chinese children parlors where attendants garbed in mandarin-like robes give a razzle-dazzle to the business of ousting a corn.

Adaptability of Chinese in any country is a striking characteristic. While they live usually in sequestered quarters beyond the main arteries, they absorb manners and customs quickly. The world outside never becomes terra incognita. Head waiters say the Chinese can order an American meal more expertly than those who have lived here all their lives. They go to the most successful places, learn the language more quickly, and adopt the American manner of dress more rapidly than other foreigners. Their imitative powers are superb.

The patented cigar and cigaret lighter business—which came to America from London—has ballooned to astounding proportions. The first lighter was made after the war for ornamental ex-service men. Only one hand is needed to manipulate the device. But the idea caught on for everybody. Yearly sales in America amount to millions. Almost every store has its lighter department and many stores, especially shops that deal almost exclusively in the necessities of life, have been made into an infinite variety of shops, with inset watches, cigar cutters and receptacles for lipsticks, eyebrow pencils and mirrors. In the beginning they sold in London for about $10, but now there are some designed to sell for as high as $600. While no figures are available, it must have been a kick in the pants for the match business. The original inventor is said to have been an obscure tinkerer who doesn't have to tinker any more.

Almost every man has dreams of inventing a gimmick that will permit him to slay down his desk and dance in the streets at will. By the obstacles are great. But when application was made for a patent it was discovered it infringed 183 other similar devices.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Beware, lest it over-balance you and bring you into the way of leaning on every friendly and harassed soul who will listen to you. Keep your balance and spare the other fellow.

This is the time of year—these spring mornings—to call the attention of motorists to the fact that they are not doing the humble pedestrian a favor when they ask him to ride. They are only embarrassing him. The walk to work may be made one of the pleasantest and most useful parts of the day. And sufficient walking removes the necessity for playing golf.

Nature does her utmost, but little by little man does on beating her. Heavy rains have been the bane of air and sea navigation. Now comes the invention of a light so powerful that it can be seen fifty miles through a haze. It will be of immense value in outlining landing fields, and it will guide ships.

It is doubtful if nature even wins the final victory in what we call death. Rather does it merely bring on a change to which the soul of man somehow makes adjustment.

Mr. Darrow says man is a machine. And so he is. But man is unlike other machines. He has something that other machines do not have and can not get. The corner drug store will sell you the ingredients of which the human body is made for a little less than a dollar—or in somewhat larger amounts for about three dollars. But you can't make a man of them. Machines may be made to function perfectly, but they do not seem to be something better than themselves. Man, at his best, does seek to be something better than himself. There's a difference.

Man, a machine, is also an animal. He is a puny animal compared with the horse or the elephant. As an animal he is behind the other animals in many ways—in strength, in sense, of instinct, oftentimes in good sense. Other animals do not do violence to their instincts. Man at his worst does. But man has something that makes him totally different. He has aspiration. Where did he get that? This is important.

Dinner Stories.

"His parents think he has a literary career before him."

"Is he solving any great social problems?" "Not yet. But he is a wonder at crossword puzzles."

"Your popularity is not as strong as it used to be."

"I have served many years," said Senator Sorghum. "You couldn't expect me at this time to break into the spotlight as an avian favorite."

"Now," said the professor when he finished his lecture on the functioning of memory, "I want to ask each member of the class to make a note of every point he has remembered. And those of you who can remember any of the points they planned those you have forgotten."

Local Eagles Initiate Class of 108; Hear Address by Former Head of Order

Charles C. Guenther of Pittsburgh is Principal Speaker: Degree Work is Conferred by Elyria Lodge

Initiation of the second largest class in the history of the local order of Eagles featured ceremonies at the Eagle building here yesterday. The class numbered 108, the largest previous to that time being 122. With the initiation of the class yesterday the total membership of the L. E. O. C. was increased to 1292.

Degree work was exemplified by a degree team composed of Elyria Eagles, fifty-two men, including the officers and all club members, who made up the party of visitors from Elyria. Preceding the ceremonies a dinner was held for the visitors at the Hotel Marion. As a token of appreciation for the work of John A. Abel, state president, and secretary of the local order, the Elyria delegation presented him with a basket of flowers.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Bloomington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bloomington, and Harry C. Moser of Ashland was solemnized Saturday night at the home of the bride's parents, 219 S. Greenwood, in the presence of about 35 close relatives and friends.

The service was read by Rev. Howard L. O'Leary, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, at 8:45 o'clock before an improvised altar of palms and ferns. Baskets of spring flowers were used in decorating the room for the occasion.

Mrs. Moser was beautiful in a gown of white satin and silk all-over lace with a veil caught up with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an armful of bridal roses, white sweet peas and snapdragons.

The bride's sister, Miss Esther Bloomington, who served as her bridesmaid, wore orchid satin and carried a bouquet of pink roses and orchid sweet peas. Jack Kool of Columbus attended Mr. Moser.

Following the ceremony Richard V. Duggett, a fraternity brother of the bridegroom, played a piano number, "I Love You Truly," and as the bride party entered the room, the Lohengrin wedding march.

Thousands Say
Best for Piles

Don't allow yourself to become discouraged because the treatments you have been taking have failed to rid you of piles.

If you haven't tried Peterson's Ointment, you have probably missed the one preparation that you should have used first because this marvelous healing preparation seldom fails.

Read this letter from a well-known Michigan Contractor:

"Received the Box of Peterson's Ointment, used it and had a real night's sleep, the first in a long time. I have been so relieved that I swear by the Ointment and recommend it to my friends. Meditations
OF A
Married Woman

—BY HELEN ROWLAND—

ONE of the most enviable things about a man is his beautiful and sublime personality.

A woman crosses the bridge forty times before she gets to it—but a man never even thinks of crossing a bridge until it is about to be washed away.

A woman has a panic at the sight of gray hair, but not until he sees his LAST hair vanishing does a man begin to wonder if he ought to try a hair tonic.

A woman worries when her throat begins to swell and ceases at thirty to ward off a double chin. But not until his chin is swelled and get in his way even his shaving does a man suspect that he may be losing his boyish beauty.

A woman begins dieting and panting at the discovery of the first few pounds of superfluous flesh, but not until a man has to let his belt out three or four notches and can no longer get into his college trousers does he feel his anxiety about his increased girth or his vanishing waistline.

A woman worries bitterly at the loss of her first illusion and her first tooth. But not until he has shed his last illusion and parted with his last molar does a man stop to wonder if it is really time for him to give up the love class and "settle down" and be sensible.

A woman has doleful visions of becoming a widow every time her husband coughs. But not until his wife has been laid for six months and he finds some other woman trying to smother him does a man wake up to the fact that he is a widower.

A woman begins thinking about love and marriage and planning a life long before the first lover arrives on the scene. She has her hope chest filled before there is any "hope" and the wedding decorations all piled out before the man has discovered the color of her eyes.

But a man never gives marriage a serious thought until he finds himself walking up the aisle to the altar—and then it's too late.

A woman lies awake nights for weeks before the wedding, wondering if she ought to do it. But a man waits until after the wedding and then lies awake nights wondering WHY he did it.

"Worrying" is woman's favorite indoor sport, but it is the one thing that a man dodges as long as he can.

That is why most men have such nice, smooth, jolly faces long after their wives' faces are covered with "crow's feet" and the marks of plastic surgery.

"Two Rugs?
Why, I thought you were only going to buy One!"

"But, my dear, two of these new rugs cost but little more than I planned to pay for one"

TAKE a thrifty trip downtown this week. Ask to see Quaker-Felt Rugs. "Expensive," you'll think when you examine them. For they do look expensive, with an air of design, a blending of fresh colors you associate with costly things.

Then the surprise: ... the price! Why, it's far less than you expected to pay. You can actually buy two of these new Quaker-Felt Rugs for a few dollars more than you may have allotted for one.

ACCOLA: a rich, dull-luster lacquer finish—tough, dirt-resisting—protects each Armstrong's

Quaker-Felt Rug. This smooth Accolac surface not only makes cleaning easier, but it stands up under daily wear and constant soap-and-water washings.

Each rug is guaranteed to give satisfactory wear. "A new rug if you're not satisfied," says the numbered certificate on the face of each Quaker-Felt Rug.

See the new spring designs in Quaker-Felt Rugs on display this week. Armstrong's Quaker-Felt also comes by the yard in six-foot and nine-foot widths. There are thirty-six attractive designs and colorings to choose from.
